

Nutrition Month Celebration

Venue: Dr. BMN College of Home Science

Date: 17th September 2025

Organized by - Mumbai Chapter of the Nutrition Society of India, in collaboration with leading women's

First-year M.Sc. Clinical Nutrition students attended a one-day conference at Dr. BMN College of Home Science as part of the Nutrition Month celebration. The session emphasized the importance of early nutrition during the first 1000 days for lifelong health, the role of the gut microbiome in child immunity, and strategies for addressing childhood malnutrition and adolescent anemia. Experts highlighted accurate growth assessment, nutrition management in pediatric diseases, and the need for improved feeding practices and food fortification. The conference also encouraged student participation and collaboration to promote innovation and a healthier future for children